

Welcome to Dalaroth Manual version .01

This manual applies to Dalaroth version .03

Introduction

Dalaroth is a browser-based, pen and paper, mmorpg. This means you play it from your browser, currently only supporting Firefox 1.0+ This also means you don't get to do things graphically in an amazing 3d client: you must use your imagination. The advantages to doing an mmorpg this way, are that you can access your character from any computer with Internet Access(provided that computer has an appropriate browser). This also means that slower computers, or computers without broadband can still play, and are at no disadvantage. It also means getting into the game is fast and easy, you don't have to wait for data files to load, or for graphics to populate, simply for the page text to download, as the server does almost all the processing for you.

Interface

There are several main parts to the interface. First off there's the banner, this is where you see the word "Dalaroth" in fancy letters. Behind this, is where you will see any page errors which the server has generated. Second, is the Chat Pane, which is where you can chat with other players by typing in the box and pressing enter or clicking chat. You can scroll the Chat Pane by clicking the "Chat Up" or "Chat Down" buttons immediately below the Chat Pane. Next, is the Center Pan, which displays information about the tile you are currently in. Things like shops, gardens, combat, portals, etc can be used here.

Next, is the Stat Pane, on the far right of the screen. At the top of the stat pane are the two buttons to scroll the chat pane, below them are four buttons: general, stats, equip, and settings. Hovering over the buttons causes a menu to display below(assuming your settings mode is menu, otherwise all menus are simply listed, with no buttons). In the general tab, aka the default menu, which displays by default on page load, you can view your x-y location, you can also sign out, and warp to the town plaza. Under the stats menu, you can view statistics about your character, including hp, exp, etc. P-num is your player number, which can be used for support requests. The very bottom value is Stat Credits, which can be used to increment your 5 main stats. If you have Stat Credits available, a "+" button is displayed beside each stat, allowing you to increase it. Under the equip menu, you can equip items in your backpack, or view item stats by clicking the item name. Add items to your backpack through drops, or purchases at shops. Under the Settings menu, you can change various things such as background image, font color, encounter rate, etc.

At the bottom of the Stat Pane, are your navigation buttons, any direction you are currently allowed to travel will be displayed as a red button. Below this is your hp bar. At the bottom of the page, is the Footer, which has several points of information, like version number, copyright info, and a link to this manual.

Gardens

Gardens are located around towns, they restore hp and mp.

Shops

Shops display all items you can buy, simply select the item you want.
